Bayard's record begins to trouble him. He is in the same boat with his party.
The Hon. Nathaniel W. Dean, an old resident of Madison, and a man well known throughout the State, died at his home in that city on Saturday, at the age of sixty-three. He died possessed of property valued at from $150,000 to $300,000.

There is a report that Matt Carpenter has promised General Grant the delegation from Wisconsin. It is very safe to presume that Matt Carpenter never promised any such thing. He knows enough to know that it will be almost impossible to get a solid delegation in this State for either Grant or Blaine.

The attack on Bayard, which has had the effect to make him squirm, and the party somewhat uneasy, was made by Tilden for a little pastime. Tilden can keep all the Democratic candidates and the entire party in a stew, and yet preserve for himself, a remarkable composed state of mind. He is the slickest old statesman in the party.

The Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph supports, and very strongly commends, the report of Senator Richardson on the taxation question. It says that "Mr. Richardson and his colleagues of the committee have presented in an unusually plausible, condensed and readable form, the whole case, and the report ought to be printed and spread broadcast through the State."

Since Mr. Tilden got the old anti-war speech of Senator Bayard published, the Delaware Senator has changed his mind about the Presidency. He now says he is not a candidate. That's just the condition the Gramercy Park statesman places all his rivals for Presidential honors. He makes them sweat while they are candidates, and then they are glad to get out of the race.

William H. Vanderbilt is the largest United States bond holder in the world. Last year he had registered five millions, and last Friday he sent five millions and five hundred thousand more of the four per cents to be registered at the Treasury Department. All told, there have been heretofore 25 millions of Government bonds registered in the name of Mr. Vanderbilt.

Hon. Andrew Shuman, the present Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois, and for the past twenty-four years one of the editors of the Chicago Journal, has, in connection with J. R. Wilson, leased the Journal for a term of years. That paper has been singularly successful under its past management, and will not be less so under the management of Shuman & Wilson. It is justly counted the best evening paper in the West.

The game that Butler played in Worcester—buying up all the hotel room in the city—will likely be played by Tilden at Cincinnati. Already he has hired nearly 300 rooms and 60 parlors, and will take more when he sees it will be necessary to further his chances. Tilden is a kind master about Convention times, provided one is on his side. His delegates get hotel rooms, parlors, and so on, without money and without price. He will make Cincinnati terribly warm for those who will not boom for him.

THE LEGISLATURE.

It has been forty-eight days since the Legislature convened, and it will probably remain in session about two weeks longer, which will make the session not far from sixty days in length. During the past two weeks a great deal of work has been done, and there is considerable yet to do, as some quite important measures are still to be disposed of which will draw out more or less discussion. The interest question which has been before the Legislature so often, and as yet has never been settled, will be taken up this evening coming up under a special order. It will provoke some discussion but to what extent can not be predicted. The Northern members will oppose any meddling with the interest laws, on the ground that in their section of the State, ten per cent is low enough and to reduce the rate would drive the money out of that part of the State into Minnesota, where ten per cent and good security can be obtained. The Southern members will generally support the six-and-eight bill on the ground that in Southern Wisconsin borrowers cannot afford to pay the rates which are not considered a burden in the lumber regions.

The capital punishment bill which was once killed in the Assembly and re-introduced on Thursday last, will be made a special order for Wednesday afternoon. The whole fight will be gone over again, and we trust the discussion will be confined to the merits of the measure. The friends of the bill claim that they have two or three majorities, and therefore are sure of sending it to the Senate this time.
On Thursday, the Biennial Session resolution will come up for a final hearing, having been postponed to that time on motion of Senator Richardson, for good reasons. This is one of the most prominent measures before the Legislature, one upon which there is considerable difference of opinion among the Senators, but not among the people, and we may expect that the Madison influence will be out in full strength to attempt to defeat the resolution. It is claimed that there is a clear majority in the Senate for the measure, which we hope will be found true when the final vote is taken.
There are other bills of more or less importance before the Legislature, and enough of them to keep that body busy for the next ten or twelve days.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY AND THE PRESIDENTIAL QUESTION.

The contest in 1860 between the Republicans in the East and the West for the Presidential candidate will be repeated in 1880. There are, however, more strong candidates now than at that time, and consequently the interest in the result will be deeper and more widespread. The central figure in this great contest is General Grant, because his friends are laboring for his nomination for a third term. He is now the best known man as well as being the most remarkable man in the world. He has a hold upon the people of this country, second only to that which Washington and Lincoln once held. There is not a Republican to-day but that deeply honors General Grant for what he has done, and yet there are thousands who do not desire him renominated for a third term. There are several reasons why they take this position. There are those who believe that to renominate him would be to throw the Republican party on the defensive in the great struggle which is coming. They think that it is a part of the patriotic traditions, and of the unwritten law of the land, that no man should serve more than two terms as President. They think the example of Washington, and which was followed by Madison, Monroe, and the illustrious Jackson, should be followed by General Grant. They think there are other candidates equally as strong, and in fact stronger, whose candidacy would place the Republican party on the aggressive side in the campaign. While they do not regard there is any danger of the third term, they see fit to oppose his nomination that the party may be solidly united, and that no mistake of the Republicans will give the Democrats the advantage in the campaign by having the aggressive side of the great political fight.

THE HOUSE.

There is no Republican in the land who is not entitled to express his own opinion on this question. He has a right to think and act for himself, and to take that course which he believes will make the party stronger and successfully aggressive. The Republican party is a party of intelligence, of liberal ideas, one over which the whip and spur has never been used, and the time will never come when it shall be moved and controlled by such influences. On the other hand, there are hundreds of thousands of Republicans, as sincere and patriotic, as honored and as influential, who support Senator Blaine. There is a dash and a brilliancy about the Senator from Maine, which captivates the young blood of the country. In some directions he is a man of power, and his patriotism and courage are not surpassed by any other public man. It is not to be wondered at that he has a great following in the West. His candidacy would arouse a mighty enthusiasm in all parts of the country, and there can be no doubt that he would unite the party.

THE HOUSE.

There are others, but their number is not very considerable, who favor the nomination of John Sherman. Whatever may be his claims, there is not that feeling toward him, and neither can there be, which will secure him the nomination. He is a man of deep integrity, and is one of the greatest financial secretaries this country has produced, but the tide of public sentiment on the Presidential question will not overtake him this year. His friends may regard this singular and unfortunate, but it is nevertheless a fact, and it must be met with in that spirit which will best subserve the interest of the party.
We do not see the danger in the third term which a great many do, neither do we regard General Grant the strongest candidate the Chicago Convention can give the party. We believe he would command a great deal of strength in the South, but whether enough to carry a State is a question. We do not believe that the George William Curtis and the Carl Schurz influence against him would seriously affect his chances, and yet, to debate the Democrats from taking any advantage of the ill-feeling which his nomination might engender, we judge it would be best, because the safest, to give the nomination to another man. This will be a year of important events. The election next fall will decide whether or not we are to have a "government of men or a government of laws," whether we should have honest and free elections, or whether the South by fraud and violence, shall control the government it once sought to destroy. If the Republicans make no mistakes, there will be no occasion to fear the domination of the ex-rebels in the government of this country.

TILDEN.

A Democratic Politician's Opinion Relating to the Strength of Tilden.
CINCINNATI, Feb. 28.—The Enquirer this morning publishes two double headed articles in the editorial page which appear significant. The first states that a Democratic politician of national reputation has been all over the State, having met three-fourths of the party leaders, and says Tilden is the choice of four-fifths of the party in Ohio, while in Hamilton county and Cincinnati, Tilden's supporters number nine to one over any other Democrat.

THE HOUSE.

The House Getting Ready for Business--The New Rules and the Appropriation Bills.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—It is expected that the new rules will be disposed of tomorrow, and then the House can go on with business, commencing the real work of the session just at the time when it ought to be concluded. Several important amendments to the rules, which have been made in committee of the whole, will be fought over again in the House, and it is quite likely that the decision to give the control of the appropriations for agriculture and public buildings to the committees on these subjects will be reversed.
Thus far only a single one of the dozen regular appropriation bills—[that providing for pensions, has become a law. The fortification bill passed the House before the recess, but has not yet been acted upon by the Senate. The military academy bill is in the hands of a conference committee. Two more appropriation bills, the Indian and the consular and diplomatic, have been reported to the House; and two others, the army and navy, are about ready to report. A sub-committee of the Commerce Committee is at work on the river and harbor bill, but will not have it perfected for a good while. The legislative and sundry civil bill, the most important and likely to excite the most debate, have as yet been hardly touched by the committee.

THE SAND-LIT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29.—There was a moderate attendance at the sand-lit meeting to-day, but little enthusiasm was manifested. The speeches were remarkably temperate, in decided contrast to the utterances from the same rostrum one week ago. Kearney and his associate agitators deprecated a riot, and gravely stated that their followers stood ready to serve as a sheriff's posse for preservation of the peace of the city. The galleys which Kearney promised to erect during the week has not been built, nor has any account of the collection being taken up, that purpose being rendered to the "unemployed" whose names helped to swell the amount. The workmen's ward presidents adopted a resolution repudiating all responsibility for incendiary language which may have been used by members of the party.

BACKING DOWN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—It is said the President will send a new list of Ohio census supervisors next Monday, which will consist of six of the Republicans already rejected, and two Democrats, as a partial concession to the demands of the majority of the Senate for a fair division. It is understood that Judge Thurman remarked in the course of the executive session debate on this subject that he would have been satisfied if the President had given the Democrats three of the eight.

EDITORIAL HOSTILITIES.

St. Louis, Feb. 27.—Since St. Louis lost the National Democratic Convention some St. Louis Journals, the Globe-Democrat being one, have freely charged that the delegation sent from this city, of which Mr. Hyde, managing editor of the Republican, was a member, got drunk, and thus forfeited the opportunities of this city. Last night Hyde encountered Mr. J. B. McCullough, managing editor of the Globe-Democrat on the street, and, bringing up the subject, a bitter verbal warfare ensued, in which the language used was much more forcible than elegant. Hyde, however, carried off the palm, and outgeneraled his opponent in the application of opprobrious epithets. The controversy had arrived at that pitch when blows were next on the programme, but the friends of both parties at that moment stepped up and led their respective champions away. It is rumored this morning that bloodshed will yet result from the affair, but the best informed say it will end as such difficulties do.

tion. Here no Grant boom was apparent one month ago; but it is now impossible to conceal the fact that, since the convention in Pennsylvania and New York, General Grant's name begins to be more favorably considered, although the mention of his candidature still calls out bitter and determined opposition from the German-American element of this part of the State. This is no inconsiderable portion of this party, and the wishes of this class of voters should be consulted. That the Germans of Wisconsin are heartily and earnestly in favor of the Hon. E. B. Washburne for President, is certain; and to him they would render an enthusiastic support that no one else could receive. Wisconsin is quite likely to send a Blaine delegation to Chicago; but this action should not be construed as indicating that the Maine statesman has a hold on the affections of the people above all other men talked of for the Presidency. It will rather be the result of efforts made in his behalf that were not attempted for any other candidate. Of course, James G. Blaine has a legion of ardent admirers among the Republicans of Wisconsin; but even some of these are not fully convinced that he would successfully stand the test of a rigid and searching campaign.

A BIC MONOPOLY.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 29.—The Standard Oil Company are seeking other worlds to conquer. They have just secured a large contract from this country for hoop-iron to be used for barrels at the work-house. The iron is to be imported from England. Last fall they took hold of the turpentine market when it was at 24 cents a gallon. All the stock that could be bought up in London and other foreign cities was quietly absorbed by them, and then the market was forced up to 50 cents. It is now said that the cotton seed oil market is about to drop into their hands, and that they are buying seed oil in large quantities.

LOOK OUT, KEARNEY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—The Secretary of War, at the instance of Representative Page, has signed an order authorizing a delivery from the Benicia arsenal to the Governor of the State of California, of about twelve thousand dollars' worth of arms and ammunition including several cannon. This issue is to be charged against the states' annual quotas until they equal the amount of the advance. Secretary Ramsey's action is based officially on a request and representations made by Creed Haymond, of the Governor's militia staff, several weeks ago.

THE UTES.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Two of the Utes who participated in the Meeker massacre arrived here to-day and it is understood will be sent immediately to Fort Monroe. Douglas, the only other one of the culprits thus far surrendered, is held a prisoner at Fort Leavenworth. Current rumor, (not yet verified, however) asserts that no punishment will be inflicted on these murderers beyond imprisonment, because, as it is argued, their crime was committed on an Indian reservation, outside the jurisdiction of the Colorado courts or of any United States tribunal. There are, nevertheless, precedents for trying and condemning to death Indian murderers by military courts, and, although the Washington authorities are reticent as to their intention in regard to these culprits, it does not seem probable that they will be allowed to escape the proper punishment. It is stated on good authority, however, that in consequence of the surrender of these three Utes, word has been sent to the commanding officer in Colorado and New Mexico that they need not continue their preparations for an Indian war in the spring, it being considered certain that the entire Ute question will be settled satisfactorily within the next month or two by firm but peaceful negotiations.

At a meeting of the shoemakers in New York who recently organized to enforce an advance in wages, it was announced that a circular in which an advance of 15 per cent was demanded had been sent to forty-four manufacturers, and that most of them had acceded to the demand without compelling the men to strike.

OUR BEST-ABUSED MEN.

Colonel Forney's Foes for the Abused Characters.
From Forney's Progress.
I say, then, give me the best abused characters of the age, give me the men and women who make us think, the men who run the gauntlet of criticism. Give me in preference to sneering doubters and shallow sciolists, rather the iconoclasts who break the old bad ideals. I do not want to startle you, but in the present world I would rather trust another William Cobbett than another John A. Roebuck; another Tom Paine than another Louis Napoleon; and of the present age in our own country, I like old Bob Toombs, of Georgia. He is a bully and a braggart, but he is honest in his insanity. And Jeff Davis I have always known to be honest, although he is as cautious as Edward Everett, and as cold. I need not repeat how I honor Ben Butler, who says more good things and does less selfish ones than forty such money hoarders as the elder Astor. A sincere peasant is Jeremiah S. Black, of Pennsylvania, able, sour, honest and utterly intractable; but I like him because he has stuck too long on the wrong side to judiciously see the right one. Such dead aggressives as Ben Wade, Judah P. Stevens, Charles Sumner, Zach Chandler and Henry C. Carey stood in the pillory of criticism all their lives and retaliated with all their best ability; I knew better than their antipodes that I have named, and every bitter word they spoke I can match with a number of sweet acts of goodness. Like their Southern opposites they were real, earnest and plucky, as far removed from the chronic conceit of many of the moderns. Enough as it they were creations of another planet.

A HERMIT'S FIGHT WITH A BEAR.

From the New York Tribune.
A bear story of which a hermit is the hero, is recounted in a special dispatch from Bushkill to the Philadelphia Press. Old Sheldon has no companions, and his lonely cave is several miles from any house, in the midst of a forest. He has no weapons save a knife, which he maintains by rubbing an old file on a stone until it be as sharp as a few days ago the hermit went out in search of firewood, and was absent from his cave about an hour. When he returned he was amazed to see a large black bear crouching in one corner of his underground abode. Before he could get out of the cave, however, the bear sprang toward him, dealing him a hard blow on the shoulder.
Sheldon drew his knife and struck bruin in the neck, but the wound only infuriated the beast. He again attempted to retreat, but the bear renewed the attack. The hermit then endeavored to deal him another blow in the neck with the knife, but the weapon glanced off, and severed one of the animal's paws. Sheldon succeeded in getting out of the cave, where the struggle was renewed, the bear getting him in his embrace and nearly hugging the life out of him; but the old man was plucky and drove the knife into the monster's heart, killing him instantly. As the bear fell down, Sheldon fainted, and was found unconscious, several hours later, by a party who had set out from the village to visit his cave.

BRIEFLETS.

—March on.
—District Attorney Sale is better today.

—Mr. Hutchinson is now improving in health rapidly.

—See notice of cows and buggy for sale in another column.

—Mrs. C. X. Smith was reported Saturday evening as improving.

—Forbes' troupe have gone to White-water, where they appear to night.

—Adam Sanner is reported as improving, though still confined to his bed.

—Prof. MacAlister will give his second art lecture at Cannon's hall to-morrow evening.

—February with its twenty-nine children started off at 12 o'clock last night for a year's trip.

—The old soldiers meet to-night at the City Hall to arrange for the reunion in Milwaukee.

—Rev. John Faville, of Fox Lake, preaches to-night at Court street church on "An Important Question."

—Mrs. Harriet E. Service, of Racine, Grand Worthy Patriarch of the State, will attend the meeting of the Sons of Temperance this evening.

—Rev. Mr. Sewell's son from Milwaukee, spent Sunday in the city with his parents, and celebrated the reaching of his "Manly" birthday, one and twenty.

—Mr. Cheney, who has been in the insurance business here for some months, has bought out Alex Russell's cigar store, and is to attend to it in person. The stock is a good one and it has fallen into good hands. May the business boom and bloom.

—All the telephones in the city were yesterday hitched onto the telephone line to Monroe, like boys' sleds in a grand slide down the hill. Monroe and Janesville talked and sung to each other for several hours, and those at each end of the line seemed delighted.

—The funeral of the late J. E. Thurbur was largely attended at the First Methodist church, yesterday afternoon. The Good Templars had charge, and the beautiful service of the Order was used in full at the grave. Rev. H. Sewell spoke from Psalm 141: "This poor man cried and the Lord heard him, and saved him from all his troubles."

—Nothing like getting used to the telephone. A lady this morning got her fruit cake all ready except the raisins, and she telephoned to a grocery man to send them up to the house. The groceryman supposing the order came from Bates at the central office, asked no names but sent the raisins up to Bates' house. At last accounts the lady and her fruit cake were still waiting.

—In spite of the fact that the morning paper announces the sudden death of Mr. Robinson, who lives near the Rock river house, that gentleman appeared in the city to-day, and had a chance to read his own obituary notice. Nothing like enterprise. That notice ought to be cut out and pasted along side of the one published the other day concerning the Western Union company using tanks for storing electricity like gas.

—The Beloit Free Press says the corps of engineers have reached that city, and completed the survey of the new railroad between this city and Beloit. The line as surveyed commences two miles west of Janesville on the Monroe division of the St. Paul railway, runs to Afton by an easy grade, crosses Rock river two miles below that village, and then takes a straight cut across the prairie. The bridge across Rock river will be 400 feet long and the track 25 feet above the water. The length of the road will be sixteen miles.

—Janesville is getting to be quite a metropolis. One young man, who is not acquainted with the extent of the Second ward though he ought to be, escorted one of its young ladies home the other evening, and so taken up was he in thought and talk that he failed to notice the lay of the land, and when he started for his home on the other side of the river, lost his bearings, got all mixed up, kept on wandering, until he found himself somewhere near Milton Junction. He was seen walking along the railroad track early the next morning, and has probably reached home ere this.

—Valentine Brothers have issued another number of their four page paper setting forth the workings and the success of their Western School of Telegraphy. The scores of young men who don't know what to do with themselves or for themselves should get hold of a copy and read it through, and if they don't know then, they may pronounce their cases hopeless. This school has been established for nearly eight years, and scores upon scores of young men have by it been helped into honest and comfortable livings, and made of value to themselves and society, and still the work goes on.

—A committee of Dane County Supervisors arrived from Madison this afternoon to look over the Rock county court house. The committee consists of Philo Dunning, Chairman, Adam Caldwell, Joseph Wallraff, and W. H. Draber. The move for a new Court House at Madison is one which is in the right direction, for the tumble-down old affair that is called by the name of court house now is of no earthly use. It might possibly do for a corn-crib if braced up, or perhaps could be whittled up into relics of yesteryear, but for a Dane county court house it has served its day and should go hence to be no more. The Supervisors may not model after Rock county, but if they get as handsome and convenient a building they will do well.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON, DRUGGISTS.

The thermometer at 6 o'clock last night stood at 6 degrees above; at 1 o'clock a. m., to-day at 14 degrees above; at 7 o'clock a. m., at 6 degrees above, and at 1 o'clock p. m. at 33 degrees above. Cloudy.

The indications to-day are, for the upper lake region, clear or fair weather, winds shifting to warmer southerly, with falling barometer.

THE NEW FIRM.

A. H. Sheldon has purchased a half interest in the hardware business of G. M. Hanchett, and the firm is now to be known as Hanchett & Sheldon. That it will prove a happy and successful partnership all will hope and none will doubt. Both members are well known here, and each has a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who will gladly encourage the enterprise. Mr. Hanchett has been in the hardware business for about sixteen years, having been with W. J. Doolittle, for a number of years, then having been in a like business in Iowa, and for six years past he has been in the business here at his present stand on Main street. Thoroughly posted and experienced, wide-awake, good-natured and popular, he has already a large trade built up.

Mr. Sheldon is also well known here, and during ten years residence in this city has formed a large circle of friends. For twenty-five years he has been in the agricultural machine and implement business, and has been naturally thrown into contact with the hardware trade, with many details of which he is already familiar. As everybody knows he is an active, thoroughly experienced business man, and will add strength to the firm.

The stock is one of the largest and most complete in the State, and embraces everything in that line, including all that is needed by wagon and carriage makers, blacksmiths, etc. The store is crammed full of goods, the two stories and basement being packed, even under the counters and in all the nooks and corners, and in the rear is a two-story warehouse filled with wood work. The supply is large, and customers are not waiting, and there seems no reason why the already large trade should not be still further increased, as the firm have everything in their favor, friends, stock, good location, low prices and an established trade.

Home Comforts, Moderate rates, ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK.

"OUR BOARDING HOUSE."

Forbes' dramatic company presented this pleasing comedy at the Opera house Saturday evening, the audience being of goodly size, and much larger than was to be expected on such a blustering night. The cast was excellent, and those who had seen the comedy presented by more pretentious troupes were happily surprised at the manner in which it was handled. There was plenty of fun and frolic, and just enough of a plot to keep the piece from falling into pieces. The ludicrous situations were made strikingly so, and the audience was kept in a roar of laughter much of the time. The fun centered about Col. Elevator, which was taken by Scott Marble, who the night before in "Black Diamonds," appeared as the darky fireman. He is immense as a mirth-maker. Ed. Gardner, who owned the mine the night before, appeared to much better advantage as Gillypud, and did his part in a way which kept the house running over with laughter. Paul Harland, who has already gained popularity by his representation of "Mark O'Dare," played the part of the Italian barber, and made an excellent villain.

Everybody seemed to enjoy the play, and though there was nothing wonderful about it or its presentation, yet it proved entertaining, and sufficiently so to repay those who had given time and money to see it.

A LUBRICANT for the limbs. ST. JACOB'S OIL.

DEATH OF MRS. WARD.

Mrs. Mary L. Ward, wife of John Ward, and daughter and only child of George and Minnie Kliest, of this city, departed this life in Milwaukee, Saturday, Feb. 23, in the 39th year of her age. The family had removed to Milwaukee from Chicago but a week before Mrs. Ward's death. Mr. Ward being an engineer on the C. & N. W. R. R. and one of the best men in the employ of that company. He was born in this city, and has relatives here and numerous friends who will tenderly sympathize with him and his two children in their sudden and sore bereavement. The funeral services, to be conducted by Rev. G. W. Lawrence, will occur to-morrow at 2 p. m., at the residence of George Kliest, on South Main street.

The members of lodge No. 90 and No. 14 I. O. O. F., are specially invited to be present, as the husband and the father of the deceased are both members of that order.

Dear Sirs:—It affords me great pleasure to inform you of the wonderful cure your "Constitution Water" has wrought upon my wife. Her doctor had pronounced her incurable of Bright's disease of the kidneys but, thanks to you, she is as well to-day as she ever was in her life. She says she is certain it had to be for your medicine, as she would have been dead before this time, and truly hopes that all who suffer with Bright's kidney disease will try your "Constitution Water" before they wait too long. Wishing you many happy years, and that your medicine may reach every sufferer, I am, Sirs, very respectfully yours,

WILLIAM A. TREVATHAN.

PULPIT POINTS.

The Mystery of Death Cleared Up by Rev. O. L. Barler—Rev. F. Hart Preaches on the Name of Jesus.

Yesterday morning Rev. O. L. Barler, of Chicago, a Swedenborgian minister, occupied the pulpit of All Souls church. He took as his theme "What is it to Die?" and based his remarks on the words "and the time drew nigh that Israel must die." He opened his discourse by stating that there was nothing about death to fear, and then proceeded to show his reasons for so claiming. He showed clearly that the corporeal body was not the man. It was but the garment, adapted for the use of man in his earthly life, and death was but the laying off this garment, as the man stepped into another and a better life, for which the body was wholly unfitted. Death was only the separation of the spiritual from the physical. It was really resurrection. In the change of the worm to the butterfly we could see both the death side and resurrection side of life, but when a man steps into this high life we see only the death side, and say "he is dying." The angels see the resurrection side, and say "he is rising." A man is not really born until he is dead.

He presented arguments against there being any resurrection of the body. To his mind the resurrection referred to the spiritual body only, and the judgment day was when a soul stepped into this higher life, and found his place and work there. There was in the other world a spiritual body which had keener perceptions, and was adapted for the new world into which an entrance was gained by death. They could talk, see, and hear, know and be known. The change was so natural that a man could hardly realize that he had died. Angels were in attendance at every death-bed, and helped the spiritual man free himself from the corporeal body, and on entering the new world, began instructing him in the things of the new kingdom. There was no desire there for a resurrected body. Swedenborg, said that when he asked those in the other world, whether they desired to be clothed in their earthly bodies, they fled from him, startled at the ignorance which should lead those on earth to believe that such a change would be desirable. The spiritual bodies were so much superior to a resurrected earthly body.

The speaker gave some pleasing thoughts concerning this subject which to many seems so gloomy. He pictured death as only the shadow of the door of home, and that only a curtain separated the earthly from the heavenly, and that if our eyes could be opened we would see that the departed ones are not far off, but that we are in the midst of the spiritual kingdom.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

At the Presbyterian church last evening Rev. F. Hart, of White Pigeon, Michigan, preached upon the text found in Acts 4:12 "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." His sermon was largely exhortatory, and given in an earnest manner which held the attention of all. He spoke of the beauty of the name of Jesus; then of its thrilling power; of its being a universal name; that it was an everlasting name; and lastly of its being the only one by which men could be saved. Though the theme is an old one the young speaker gave to it much fresh thought, illustrated it aptly, and drove his points home with much force.
